

C.B. Bhandari Jain College for Women in brief

There is a sizeable Jain Community in the city of Bangalore whose members have been rendering yeoman service to society by way of establishing and running successfully charitable institutions like Hospitals and Schools and Colleges and doing valuable social service in times of emergency and need.

Shree Mahaveer Jain Shikshan Sangh is one such Association. In order to serve the cause of Women's Education it started a Junior college for girls in 1992, affiliated to Karnataka PU board.

And to expand girls' education still further, it acquired land just adjacent to the School and constructed a magnificent four-storeyed building, in which a new composite Junior and Degree College exclusively for girls was started in June 2000. Dr. Asha Ganesh is heading the institution since its inception in June 2000. She has served as Syndicate member and Academic Council member of Bangalore University between 2010 – 12.

To promote higher education in the field of commerce, the College has started M.Com post graduate course of Bangalore University. Necessary infrastructure such as furniture, teaching aids and experienced faculty has been provided after the affiliation was completed.
